Officer Edgar Lewis Edward Dye | Middletown Police Department

Age: 35

Served: $1\frac{1}{4}$ years

January 1, 1912 to March 21, 1913

OFFICER

Born December 23, 1877 in Grants Lick, Campbell County, to William Foster and Sarah Sereptha (Thomas) Dye. He married Emma Rose Clippard on Christmas Day 1901. He was at that time a polisher in a bicycle factory.

We believe he joined the Middletown Police Department on or about January 1, 1912.

INCIDENT

On December 4, 1912, Officer Dye pursued a suspect into a barn and then up into a hayloft. After apprehending the suspect and while descending the ladder, a rung broke. Officer Dye fell and fractured his femur. He was taken to Mercy Hospital in Hamilton and admitted.

At some point, he was treated by Dr. William B. Linville who Officer Dye claimed broke his leg. On February 17, 1913, Officer Dye filed a lawsuit against Dr. Linville asking for $20,000. With an infection and gangrene setting in his leg, Officer Dye's leg was amputated at the end of February.

DEATH

Amputation did not save him. He died three weeks later on March 21, 1913.

Officer Dye was survived by his wife of twelve years, Emma Rose (Clippard) Dye (37); children, Howard Lewis Dye (10), Carl Edward Dye (7), and Leona Mae Day (4); his parents; and several siblings. He was buried on March 24, 1913 in Section 6, Grave 282, Grave 1 of Woodside Cemetery in Middletown, Ohio.

EPILOGUE

The lawsuit against Dr. Linville was continued by Officer Dye's wife. Two years after Officer Dye's death, a jury found in favor of the Dr. Linville.

During 1912, the Middletown Police Department employed eight patrolmen. By 1939, three had died in line of duty deaths.

We know of only seven line of deaths of Middletown Police Officers in the 20^{th} Century and five died during Prohibition. We believe there is another Middletown officer's death in the 19^{th} Century, perhaps named "Moyer" but have found little account of it.
