OOTING' IS THE ISS

REMEMBER WHEN—?

THE first police patrol, introduced in Cincinnati in 1880, was very crude when compared with the covered vehicles which followed and the present police auto. It was driven by a single horse. The first patrol house was established in a two-story building on Eighth-st., near Plum, on the present site of the Union Gas and Electric Co. station. Some officials of older Cincinnati are shown in the above picture of the first patrol and first patrol house. Seated in the wagon, left to right, are: Police Telephone Operator, Devine, Anthony Corry, Charles Hudson and Joseph Wuest. On the driver's seat are: John Ambrose and James Dunn. Standing in front of the wagon are, left to right: Dr. Armstrong, police surgeon; William Devine, inspector of police; Colonel Riley, police chief; Mayor William Means and Mr. Armstrong. The latter was the originator of the police patrol in Cincinnati. J. J. Corry of the Cal Crim Detective Bureau loaned the picture for reproduction in The Post's series of old Cincinnati scenes.
